Religare MF: Equity Market Outlook and Opportunities

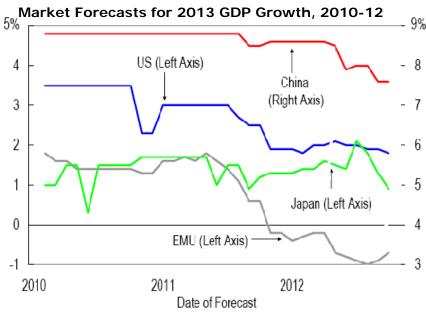

Equity Market Outlook

- Forecasts for 2013 GDP growth rates for most regions of the globe have been cut, with sharpest cuts being for Europe and US.
- Global economic growth is expected at about 3.3% in 2012, and 3.6% in 2013, according to IMF estimates.
- Also the global economic challenges in the form of unemployment have been rising with the highest rise over the last six years being in Euro Area.
- While India's GDP growth continues to remain soft, some of the recent data like IIP growth seems to have started to stabilize at lower levels.
- Overall macro environment remains challenging as reflected by persistently high inflation, and elevated twin deficits (trade and fiscal).
- Mid-way in the earnings season, Sensex companies have slightly disappointed on the revenue growth and positively surprised on the earnings growth.
- Consensus expectations for FY13 earnings growth are at about 10% growth, which appears reasonable. Forecasts for FY14E earnings growth are at 13%.

- Forecasts for 2013 GDP growth rates for most regions of the globe have been cut, with sharpest cuts being for Europe and US.
- Also the challenges in the form of unemployment has been rising with the highest rise over the last six years being in Euro Area.

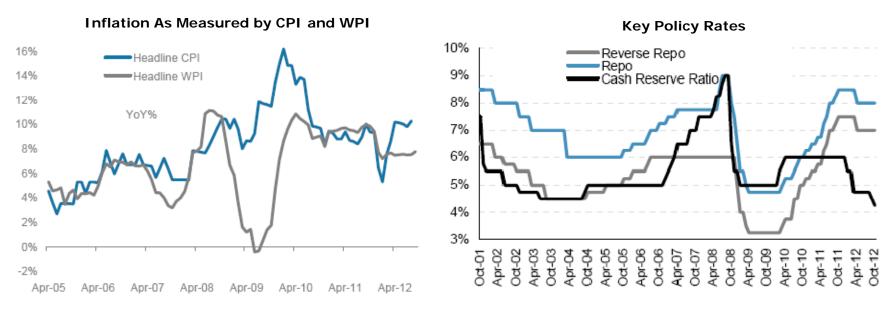

India's GDP Growth - stabilizing at lower levels

- India's GDP growth continues to remain soft at around 5.4% levels.
- However, some of the recent data like IIP growth seems to have started to stabilize at lower levels, indicating that the over all growth may stabilize in the near term.
- Overall macro environment remains challenging as reflected by persistently high inflation, and elevated twin deficits (trade and fiscal).

Monetary Policy - inflation the key obstacle

- Inflation continues to remain a key challenge, despite growth moderating.
- Highlighting the Governor's own comments with regard to inflation "India is an exception to the global trend, which underscores the role of domestic structural factors. Of particular concern is the stickiness of core inflation, mainly on account of supply constraints and the cost-push of rupee depreciation".
- RBI in its quarterly review of monetary policy on October 30, kept the repo rate and reverse repo rate unchanged at 8% and 7%, respectively and reduced CRR by 25bps to 4.25%.
- However, the Governor, in his comments has hinted to some easing from Q1CY13.

Morgan Stanley estimates used as proxy for market estimates

- We are mid-way into the earnings season. On an aggregate, the Sensex companies have slightly disappointed on the revenue growth and positively surprised on the earnings growth.
- Within the Sensex, the 19 companies that have reported saw earnings growth of 13% YoY vs. expectations of 10% YoY. However, for the same set, the reported sales growth was at 14% YoY vs. expectations of 17% YoY.

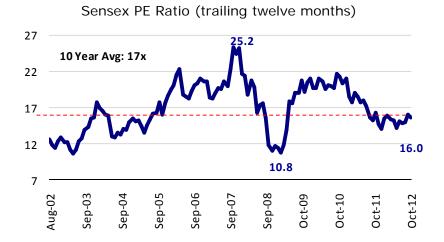

Earnings Forecasts - Earnings Expectations Remain Moderate

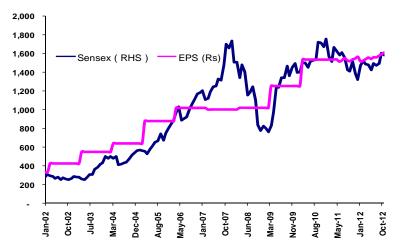

- Consensus expectations for FY13 earnings growth are at about 10% growth, which appears reasonable.
- Expectations for FY14E EPS growth continue to remain at 13%, highlighting muted expectations in terms of slow economic growth percolating into corporate earnings.

Valuations - At Reasonable Levels

- Sensex is currently trading at 15.7x its trailing earnings. It is now 8% lower than its historical 10-year average trailing PE of 17x.
- On a 1-yr forward basis, Sensex is trading at 14.1x which is about 2.8% below its 10 year average PE.
- The de-rating of market since 2007 is evident in the accompanying chart with earnings considerably above the 2007 levels whereas the markets have not progressed much over the past 5 years.

Looking Ahead...

- While markets are focused on quantitative easing by authorities across the developed world, however, the underlying economies have not yet responded meaningfully and continue to remain sluggish.
- Government has followed up on its drive for reforms by announcing another set of revised FRBM targets and announcements to contain the fiscal deficit. However, we are yet to witness any meaningful execution on the ground.
- The central bank remains concerned about inflation. Hence in the recently announced monetary policy, it has kept rates unchanged and highlighted the stickiness of core inflation.
- According to the RBI, as inflation eases further, there will be an opportunity for monetary policy to act in conjunction with fiscal and other measures to mitigate the growth risks and take the economy to a sustained higher growth trajectory.
- The macro situation remains challenging. However, less cyclical components of the market are trading at rich valuations and pockets of under valuation exist in the cyclical areas.
- Hence we are preferring to emphasize the bottom up stock selection over macro and sector views.
- Valuation discount to long term averages has compressed and is no longer as attractive as it was earlier this year. But valuations remain in the comfort zone.
- Companies with businesses having reasonable growth prospects and in a healthy financial position, which can ride out the challenging environment and benefit from an improvement in the economic outlook would be preferred. However, in areas where valuations already reflect a high degree of stress, we have been open to making selective investments.
