Key features

Greater potential for growth

At the time of economic revival, there can be immense potential for midcap companies* to grow as they belong to high growth sectors or have niche market presence and are positioned to benefit from growing economy.

Under-researched companies, higher returns potential

Midcap companies are relatively under researched presenting an opportunity to exploit significant gaps between market price and intrinsic values, thereby generating higher returns than the market over a period of time.

(Past performance may or may not be sustained in future)

Capitalise on the opportunity

Guided by thorough research and processes, our expert team helps shortlist and invest in suitable midcap companies that have the potential to grow.

*Mid Cap: 101st - 250th company in terms of full market capitalization.

- In scalable / niche businesses with attractive return ratios, strong cash flows with healthy balance sheet position.
- With credible promoter/management pedigree who can take the company to the next level.
- At a portfolio construction level, our reasonably concentrated portfolio is significantly different from the benchmark.
- With larger allocation towards growth oriented companies that are trading at reasonable valuations.
- Taking active overweight positions in all the companies that are owned.
